

Server side templating

Backend server creates a fully rendered page to client every time on for any new page request.

Single Page Application

Server sends a bare minimum html do which then loads a bunch of javascript code which runs on machine to assemble a full webpage